

Centro Studi ItaSForum

Per la cultura della sicurezza

The Italian Security Research Institute (ItaSForum) is a non-profit and a non-governmental organization, founded in 1998 by professional people in the security sector, who aim to promote a holistic concept of security.

In the past 12 years, ItaSForum activity has included:

- Eighteen conventions;
- Six intensive seminars in cooperation with universities and other research institutes;
- Several scientific publications;
- Master in "Security Management" together with the University of Bergamo.

All the ItaSForum members give their free contribution, since they believe that their commitment could have positive effects on the society.

One of the ItaSForum's main goal is to build a correct, dynamic and complete concept of security. Therefore, as research Institute, it aims to:

- suggest ideas and projects, such as identifying and experimenting solutions and services;
- make its research activity suitable for local agencies security policies
- organize study groups for risk managers, buyers, heads of human resources, heads of planning and logistics, heads of local and regional public security

ItaSForum wants to be a solid support for the continuous improvement of companies security, in subsidiary function with public institutions that have the main preventing functions.

ItaSForum members are:

- Economic and legal experts;
- Security managers and consultants from the most important Italian companies;
- Security system engineers, focused on technical aspects (security systems designing and component construction);
- Surveillance companies strongly open to technical innovations.